Aaron Treguboff is a high school senior who has been homeschooled for twelve years. He was on a student council for three years and currently. Aaron is the Vice President of Eta Sigma Alpha in Phoenix—a homeschool honor society for grades 7-12. He is also a member of the National Society of High School Scholars which is a national honor society founded by the Nobel family.

In addition to his school activities, Aaron is a part-time technician for Compass Electronics. He has volunteered with the Westside Food Bank, the Family Attic Thrift Store (nonprofit), gave a dinner party for underprivileged children and made Christmas cards for our soldiers in Iraq. Aaron is an avid hockey fan and has played the center position for both ice and roller hockey teams. He was on a championship team and was the leading scorer in his league. In the near future, this talented young man plans to obtain a degree in business from either Arizona State University or Grand Canyon University.
